Welcome back to the RMBS annual Bead Bazaar!

Our volunteer staff has once again worked tirelessly to put together another terrific show. Peruse through the following pages to see what classes we'll be offering this year. I'm excited about our line-up and hope you will be too.

Membership in the RMBS is not necessary to register for classes. However, there are some fabulous perks in becoming a member, visit our website or the Beading 101 booth for more information.

Our Mission Statement was updated last year to more closely reflect our purpose:

Learn - Educate members about the history and the future of beads and bead-work

Share - Expand the knowledge and skill sets of members with quality educational programs and thru knowledge sharing

Create - Facilitate the use of current and new techniques to encourage artistic growth in our members

Enjoy - Provide a relaxed and supportive environment which nurtures creative development and expression

I hope you're able to find each of these attributes during our show!

What are seed beads?

Seed beads are small (or tiny) beads that look a little bit like plant seeds, hence the name! They can be used to create amazing jewelry pieces and for embroidery projects too. They come in a range of sizes, shapes and finishes.

Generally, seed beads are divided into the following main types — Japanese Cylinder Beads, Japanese Seed Beads and Czech Seed Beads. You can find cheap seed beads manufactured in China but it's often worth spending a little extra to buy the best quality beads which come from Japan and the Czech Republic. Examples of Japanese manufacturers are Miyuki, Toho and Matsuno.

Seed bead types explained

Japanese Cylinder Beads

Miyuki manufacture the well-known Delica beads, which are a very high quality cylinder shaped bead. They are extremely precise in shape and size which makes them perfect for beadweaving projects that require a flat and even finish. Delicas are very lightweight beads with thin walls and they have a large hole for their size, which allows beading thread to pass through many times.

Japanese Seed Beads

Miyuki, Toho and Matsuno manufacture a round seed bead (round seed beads are also known as Rocailles). These seed beads are also very high quality and uniform in size.

Czech Seed Beads

Seed beads manufactured in the Czech Republic are donut shaped beads. They have small holes so they are not always practical for beadweaving projects. They are not uniform in size but they often look very pretty and they can still be used for certain beadwoven pieces where irregular shape is needed. Czech seed beads work very well in bead embroidery projects. Czech seed beads are usually a little cheaper to buy than Japanese seed and cylinder beads.

Seed bead sizes

The most common sizes of seed beads that you'll come across are sizes 6/0, 8/0, 11/0 and 15/0. Seed bead sizes are a little confusing because the smaller the bead size, the larger it is! For example a size 6/0 seed bead is larger than a size 11/0 seed bead. Size 11/0 seed beads are very popular for use in beadweaving and size 15/0s are very tiny but fabulous.

Seed bead finishes

In addition to the many types, shapes and sizes of seed beads, they are also available in a wide range of finishes! Here are some that you might have seen or heard of already:

Color-lined: these beads have a colored lining on the inside of the bead and transparent glass on the outside.

Silver, gold or metal-lined: these are lined on the inside to give a metallic effect. The outside is made from transparent glass.

Transparent: completely transparent on the inside and out.

Frosted transparent: slight see through with a frosted matte finished.

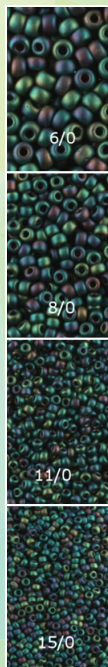

Opaque: these are seed beads which are a solid color. You can find these in a shiny or matte finish.

Luster: seed beads finished with a pearlized sheen.

AB: designed to reflect and sparkle, this is a rainbow finish.

Galvanized: a frosted metallic finish, non-stable.

Picasso: this finish adds a mottled or marble effect to seed beads

10 Good Reasons to Buy Beads

1. They keep each other company in the cupboard where they are kept.
2. It is your duty to support the glass industry and bead shops. It keeps the economy moving.
3. It is less expensive and more fun than therapy.
4. You're participating in a contest - the one who dies with the most beads wins.
5. They keep without refrigeration, you don't have to cook them to enjoy them, you never have to feed them, change them, wipe their noses, or walk them.
6. Because you're worth it.
7. Like dust, they're good at protecting previously empty spaces in the house, like the coffee table and the dining room table.
8. They're not immoral, illegal, or fattening. They calm the nerves, purify the soul, and make you feel good.
9. Because they are on sale.
10. Because your husband's not retired yet and you get to go on bead shopping expeditions alone. So best to stock up now, while you can!
